Breeding and Racing in California for more than four decades

In 1966, Jack Harris and his 23-year-old son John made the decision to allocate a 60-acre section of the Harris Ranch farming and cattle operation in Coalinga to a new livestock venture, Thoroughbred racing. It was the beginning of a lifelong dream spanning three generations of horsemen.

Over the years, the Harris Farms horse division has enjoyed high levels of success on the racetrack and in the breeding shed, accounting for three of the five California-bred victories in the Breeders' Cup, at least 30 California divisional champions, 20 California Cup champions and six horse-of-the-year honors for the farm and its clients.

Harris Farms began its Coalinga farming operation in 1937, and is proud to celebrate its 75th Anniversary with CTBA.
